New plea for help in Ladner-Beaudry case

Crime. Five years after her murder, a new group of investigators is being tasked with finding her killer

It was five years ago Thursday when 53-year-old Wendy Ladner-Beaudry was murdered while running in Pacific Spirit Park, prompting an unsolved investigation spanning to this day.

But with a renewed spirit and a fresh set of investigators from the Major Crimes Unit (MCU) taking over the case, her family hasn't lost hope of finding the killer and gaining much-needed closure.

"We lost a wise mother, a loving wife, a compassionate sister, a loyal friend, cheerful mentor, dedicated community member, healthy-living advocate, a running companion and a great Scrabble player," said Wendy's brother Peter Ladner, a former Vancouver city councillor, on Thursday outside the very trail where she was attacked.

As of April 1 the Integrated Homicide Investigation Team (IHIT) started transitioning the case to the MCU, which promised dedicated investigators to this case.

"They have the capacity to deal with the enormous amount of work that's still left to be concluded on this file," said Sgt. Jennifer Pound of IHIT.

Since Ladner-Beaudry's case was first brought to police five years ago, those same investigators have since taken on 35 new homicide files.

Pound and Acting Supt. Wade Lymburner said there's no established motive and no suspect, but there is someone out there who knows exactly what happened to Ladner-Beaudry and they want to find that person.

"I know there's at least one individual out there that knows what happened to Wendy five years ago today, at least one," Lymburner said.

Over the next several months the MCU and IHIT will be working closely together to ensure the smooth transition of the case.

The first priority is for the new investigators to get as much information from the previous IHIT investigators as possible — to learn what's been done, go over what should be examined again and move on from there, according to Lymburner.

"This gives us a better chance than we've had since the beginning of this investigation," said Ladner.

Police and Ladner said they believe it was a stranger who murdered Wendy, and not someone she knew.

Anyone who has information is being asked to call Crime Stoppers or the new MCU tip line at 778-290-5291.

‘We want to take our city to the next level’: Robertson

Looking for four more years. Mayor launches election campaign, reiterates opposition to pipeline expansion

EMILY JACKSON
emily.jackson@metronews.ca

Mayor Gregor Robertson speaks to reporters at city hall on Thursday. JENNIFER GAUTHIER/FOR METRO

He wants to build a subway to UBC, stop the expansion of the Kinder Morgan pipeline and keep working to end homelessness and build affordable housing.

These are the top priorities Vancouver Mayor Gregor Robertson highlighted when he officially launched his election campaign on Thursday, six months before the election where he will seek a third term in office with the dominant Vision Vancouver party.

“We’re gearing up to build on the success of our last five years, the progress we’ve made on homelessness and affordable housing, fighting for transit, building a strong economy here in Vancouver and making our city safer and more fun,” Robertson told reporters at city hall.

“We want to take our city to the next level over these next four years.”

The mayor dug in his heels on his opposition to the pipeline expansion even though the city ultimately has no regulatory power to stop it.

“The Kinder Morgan pipeline is a huge threat to Vancouver’s success. Our economy and our environment are at great risk if there’s an oil spill in our harbour,” he said.

When asked if he’s sticking his nose into something that affects interests outside the city instead of focusing on, say, transit, he said Canada’s economy doesn’t depend on the pipeline for success and it won’t bring many jobs to B.C.

“It’s unacceptable for us to stand back and let something intrude and threaten our economy and potentially destroy our environment,” he said, adding he plans to focus on “clean and green” jobs.

Robertson’s party plans extensive outreach to neighbourhoods across the city over the coming months, he said. When it comes to backlash over community centres, neighbourhood plans and bike lanes, Robertson says he hears both criticism and support over controversial decisions.

He dismissed the main opposing party, the NPA, as inexperienced leaders who “simply don’t get” what Vancouverites want.

The mayor hosted a telephone town hall with Vision Vancouver supporters Thursday. The party will hold a policy conference Sunday to discuss ideas for its platform.

What will Robson St. look like this summer?

Urban Reef is one of the design concepts for the 800 block of Robson Street for summer 2014. CONTRIBUTED

A giant blue slinky. Kiddie pools. A covered tunnel. Wooden benches.

These are just a few of the imaginative ideas for transforming the 800 block of Robson Street into a pedestrian plaza from Canada Day until Labour Day.

This is the fourth year the city will shut the road to cars and transit during the summer months to make way for public space installations in front of the art gallery, but it’s the first time it’s holding a large-scale competition to design the space.

It received 78 entries from designers and architects, including candidates from Japan and Spain.

While a jury will ultimately decide which project is both fitting and feasible, the public will be able to vote for their favourite idea online and select a peoples’ choice winner.

The design competition comes after a successful shutdown in 2013, where the street was covered with cedar benches and a patio inspired by old logging roads. (This was less controversial than the 2012 beanbags that proved desirable for some to sleep on.)

Neither drivers nor bus riders are typically thrilled by the road closure, but it has proven popular with tourists, pedestrians, food trucks and local businesses. Last year the Downtown Vancouver Business Improvement Association didn’t get a single complaint about the Corduroy Road project, which cost about $50,000 to implement for eight weeks.

The block was first shut down for the 2010 Olympics. The city has considered making the closure permanent, but said it first needs to study impacts on transportation.

People can vote for their favourite designs at vivadesigncomp.ca. Winners will be announced April 15.

Langley

Attempted murder suspect arrested

Langley RCMP say Andre Harvey Richard has been arrested.

Richard was wanted for an alleged attempted murder in Langley Wednesday, where a woman and her 14-year-old daughter were hospitalized after a suspect allegedly broke into their home, assaulted the victims and set the house on fire.

After the shocking incident, Mounties launched a manhunt for Richard, the victim’s estranged husband.

That hunt ended at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, when RCMP received a report of an erratic, possibly impaired driver near Fernie, in the East Kootenay region of B.C.

The driver who called police was able to follow the suspect’s car until it came to a stop.

The suspect got out of the car and hid in a roadside bush.

RCMP called in a crisis negotiator and were able to take the man — now identified as Richard — into custody without incident.

Langley RCMP say its serious crime investigators have been dispatched to Cranbrook to follow through on their investigation of the attempted murder, and formal charges are expected within the next 24 hours.

The victims of Wednesday’s incident are expected to recover from their injuries.

WorkSafeBC levies fines, fees in deadly Burns Lake blast

B.C.’s workers compensation board has imposed more than $1 million in fines and fees against the owners of the Burns Lake sawmill that exploded, killing two workers and injuring 19 others.

WorkSafeBC charged Hampton Affiliates a penalty of $97,000, and a so-called claims cost levy of almost $915,000.

The levy authorizes the agency to collect compensation for death or injury, and the money will be deposited into an accident fund.

However, WorkSafeBC says the total claim associated with the incident is nearly $5.2 million.

Maureen Luggi, whose husband was killed in the blast two years ago, says the fine isn’t acceptable to her and she still wants an independent inquiry into the cause of the blast that destroyed the mill.

California drought could push B.C. to buy local

How do ya like them apples? Prices on U.S. fruit and produce are expected to rise, which may be good news for local growers

matt.kieltyka@metronews.ca

British Columbia growers are giving the green thumbs up on what may otherwise be an expensive season for grocery shoppers.

With the Canadian dollar sitting at 0.91 USD as of Thursday and with California food producers reeling from the driest year on record, the bulk of imported fruit and produce on store shelves in British Columbia are expected to jump in price.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture forecast the drought in California (its No. 1 farm state) could have "large and lasting effects on fruit, vegetable, dairy and egg prices," according to a March 25 report by Reuters.

That's bad news for B.C. shoppers.

"The punch line is 'hang on to your ass,'" said Simon Fraser University marketing professor Lindsay Meredith. "The loonie is taking a dive and there are no vegetables left, so you do the math."

The dire straights facing imports, however, has local producers chomping for a larger bite of the market.

"It's a double edged sword," said Fred Steele, president of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association. "For us, it's actually been a great winter. I think we'll have a really strong year. Domestic prices will be stable and for B.C. producers it's about supply and demand."

Every crisis has its winners and losers, and Meredith is confident B.C. producers will reap the benefits of the volatile international situation.

Families already conscious about making ends meet won't think twice about ditching their California oranges for B.C. apples.

"People are quite sensitive to prices, there is no question about that," Meredith said. "Food is one of those things you have to have, so all those local veggie guys with greenhouses and fruit farmers are in a good position."

Looking past this season, Steele is even more optimistic about the fortune of B.C. growers.

He believes the threat of permanent price increases on U.S. produce is already becoming reality, and it coincides with the growing trend of consumers reaching for quality local products.

Quoted

"All those local veggie guys with greenhouses and fruit farmers are in a good position."

Lindsay Meredith, marketing professor at Simon Fraser University, on the local impact of the California drought.

U.S. fruit and vegetables, like these apples at the market in Granville Island, are set to jump in price as the California drought continues.
JENNIFER GAUTHIER/FOR METRO

"The cheap food policy we've had for 50 years or more, you're going to see that end," he said. "It's going to be a quality food market."

British Columbia does not keep a break down of how much of fruit and vegetables sold in the province are domestic and how much are imported.

However, the sale of B.C. crops amounted to nearly $1.4 billion in 2012, up eight per cent over 2011 and up 16 per cent over the previous five-year average, according to the Ministry of Agriculture's latest statistical roundup in September 2013.

Total sales by the B.C. agrifoods industry (which also includes livestock, aquaculture, commercial fisheries, and food and beverage processing) for that year were $11.7 billion.

The government hopes to grow agrifoods into a $14-billion-a-year industry by 2017, and invests $2 million annually into Buy Local programs.

It all points to a continuing boon for B.C. growers.

"This year's prices of Californian fruits and vegetables could be higher in B.C. due to the drought the state has experienced," said Agriculture Minister Pat Pimm in a statement.

"I encourage folks to choose B.C. products first. Buying locally-grown produce keeps dollars and supports jobs in our communities, and that is good for all of us."

Frustrated residents determined to make their own city plan

First it was moving way too fast, now it's way too slow.

The city can't seem to get it just right for a group of residents living in Grandview-Woodland as the neighbourhood goes through the process of creating a 30-year plan.

Fed up with waiting for the plan to move forward — it was delayed in September 2013 in response to community uproar over towers that mysteriously appeared out of nowhere in the plan — a group of at least 80 people plan to break away from the city process and create their own plan, spokesman Jak King announced Thursday.

"We were begging them for more time to have proper consultation, we weren't begging them for silence," King said. "Nothing is going on."

King recognizes it will be difficult to organize people without the city's resources, but believes this group's plan will fully represent what the neighbourhood wants.

It won't need to be "forced through" like controversial plans for Oakridge and the Downtown Eastside, he said.

Yet city Coun. Andrea Reimer said there hasn't been a delay, but the process the residents asked for is inherently slow. There has been consultation on what the citizens' assembly will look like, she said, and one is expected to exist soon.

"They wanted a new process ... if it's authentically new and involves consultation to develop, it takes time," she said. "We're sort of piloting and pioneering the process."

Developing this has taken longer than expected due to low representation from renters, youth and the Aboriginal community.

She lauds King's energy and commitment to organizing the community, but hopes the difference between the two planning processes are clear to residents.

EMILY JACKSON/METRO

Delays

The plan was delayed in September after two towers mysteriously appeared, leading to community uproar. A city councillor is defending the process, saying consultation takes time.

Resorts nail down scope of slope season

Winding down. Precious few weeks left for last-minute skiing, snowboarding

vancouver@metronews.ca

The end is nigh for the ski and snowboard season as many local resorts are preparing to close down their hills within the next few weeks.

Joffrey Koeman, spokesperson for Cypress Mountain, said they are potentially planning to shut down as soon as April 21, the day after Easter weekend.

"That would make for a very long season," Koeman said. "153 days in operation."

Mount Seymour in North Vancouver is also planning to be open until at least mid-April, according to communications co-ordinator Emmalee Brunt.

"Our closing date is going to be April 20th," she said. "We're extending this season about two extra weeks. Normally we close fairly early in April."

Brunt said this is to allow season-pass holders to have a little bit more time on the snow and to offset some of the warm weather woes they faced in early winter.

Grouse Mountain is expected to be open until somewhere between April 15 and the end of the month, depending on the weather.

Whistler Mountain is scheduled to close on April 21, while Blackcomb Mountain has extended their winter season to May 26.

Local company releases first photo from orbit

Vancouver-based UrtheCast released its first image of Earth from space on March 28: a 300-kilometre area around Moneague, Jamaica. CONTRIBUTED

A Vancouver-based company with cameras installed on the International Space Station has released its first images of Earth.

UrtheCast Corp. revealed an image centered on Moneague, Jamaica, that covers 300 square kilometres, taken on March 28.

"This is a pivotal moment for the company," said UrtheCast co-founder Scott Larson in a news release. "Our team has been working extremely hard to make certain that we reach this goal of democratizing a very powerful perspective on the world."

Russian astronauts installed the cameras earlier this year on the Russian segment of the space station.

Two UrtheCast cameras were installed: a medium-resolution camera and an ultra-HD camera. The image of Jamaica was taken on the medium-resolution camera.

However, the company, still developing its ultra-HD colour video feed, plans to release images from both cameras in a "near real-time flyover view" as the space station orbits the globe 16 times each day.

The cameras are expected to be available for full public use in a few months, said UrtheCast spokesman Christian Darbyshire.

"People will be able to zoom in, zoom out, rewind," he said.

Video and images released through the HD camera will also be able to show objects up to one metre wide.

"It's essentially IMAX quality," said Darbyshire.

The medium-resolution camera will finish testing in about four weeks. The company will then begin to test the HD camera.

Social network created to cause dissent

Cuban Twitter. The project strived to build an audience and push them toward dissent

The U.S. government masterminded the creation of a "Cuban Twitter" — a communications network designed to undermine the communist government in Cuba, built with secret shell companies and financed through foreign banks, The Associated Press has learned.

Project "ZunZuneo" lasted more than two years and drew 40,000-plus subscribers. First, the network would build a Cuban audience, mostly young people; then, the plan was to push them to dissent. It's unclear whether the scheme was legal under U.S. law. Rajiv Shah, administrator for the U.S. Agency for International Development, said it was not a covert program, which requires written authorization of the president and congressional notification, though "parts of it were done discreetly."

The project began in 2009 after Washington-based Creative Associates International obtained a half-million Cuban cellphone numbers. Project organizers used those numbers to start a subscriber base. USAID and its contractors set up front companies in Spain and the Cayman Islands to hide the money trail.

Organizers worked hard to create a legimate-looking network and companion site so users could subscribe and send their own text messages. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Catharines. Mickey the Lobster tragically dies far from home

The Lincoln County Humane Society in St. Catharines, Ont. sent out a tweet Thursday saying a lobster found abandoned in a box in a restaurant parking lot has died.

The crustacean — dubbed Mickey the Lobster — was discovered Wednesday in a parking lot.

The humane society's executive director Kevin Strooband had said the investigation was ongoing, but suspected that the lobster was left there as a prank on April Fools' Day.

Deep hidden ocean located on Saturn moon

Enceladus. Little moon is probably not the only one with a subsurface sea; Saturn's Titan moon may have an ocean

Scientists have uncovered a vast ocean beneath the icy surface of Saturn's little moon Enceladus.

Italian and American researchers made the discovery using Cassini, a NASA-European spacecraft still exploring Saturn and its rings 17 years after its launch from Cape Canaveral. Their findings were announced Thursday. This new ocean of liquid water — as big as or even bigger than North America's Lake Superior — is centred at the south pole of Enceladus and could encompass much if not most of the moon. Enceladus is about 499 kilometres across.

the possible interior of Enceladus.
NASA/JPL/CALTECH/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The data does not show if the ocean extends to the north pole, said the lead researcher, Luciano Iess of Sapienza University of Rome. At the very least, it's a regional sea some 40 kilometres deep under miles-thick ice.

On Earth, it would stretch at least from our South Pole up to New Zealand.

Cassini's rudimentary instruments cannot determine whether the moon's ocean harbours any form of life. Another mission using more sophisticated instruments is needed for that.

ARE YOU A TARGET?

And if so, what to do. Hackers and privacy thieves may sometimes come to us in ways we don't expect; here are a few examples that might surprise you

SEAN MCKIBBON
Metro in Ottawa

After taking the normal precautions to protect our privacy and digital belongings — measures such as making strong passwords, using firewalls and anti-virus software, keeping computers and other equipment updated and using a VPN at public Wi-Fi sites — people have to weigh how much further they have to go to stay safe.

"We all have to figure out whether or not we're likely to be a target," says Scott Wright, a computer security expert who has worked in the field for more than a decade and uses his powers of hacking for good and not for evil.

"If you are not a target, you take the risk, like you take the risk of driving down the street and not getting into an accident."

But it's often not as easy a question to answer as most people think it is.

Are you rich? No? Is your boss?

While an individual of modest means might be less likely to be a target for hackers, their employers might be, says Wright.

"Sometimes hackers use people as stepping stones," he says. Important intellectual property or fat lines of credit can be very attractive targets for hackers.

Inside job

"When it comes to security in businesses, the person who is going to have the easiest time of things is the person inside your company."

Leigh Honeywell, computer security researcher, who says companies need to be really careful about who they hire

The enemy that comes from within

Nor should we overlook the threats closest to us.

"When it comes to security in businesses, the person who is going to have the easiest time of things is the person inside your company," says computer security researcher Leigh Honeywell.

"People call it the insider threat.

"And that's where having good hiring practices, having good internal security, paying attention that you are hiring good people — that's what makes the difference there."

She adds that companies should also have layers of checks and balances in place so that if someone does go rogue they can be detected and stopped. But while companies can hire security professionals such as Wright and Honeywell, that's an expensive prospect for an individual. Home research, trusted friends with computer know-how and common sense are what most people have to rely on.

When your computer is out to get you

Even technology can pose threats to privacy all by itself, she says, pointing to an incident that happened when Google launched its now defunct Buzz social networking platform. Buzz would automatically "friend" all of the people in its user's email contacts — a feature that looked more like a bug for one woman when Buzz friended her abusive ex.

"Anything you post on a website you should consider to be eventually public even though your privacy settings may control who can access it at any given time," says Wright.

"Do a little bit of research to see if there have been any complaints or breaches," he says when asked about how to choose a cloud-based service. Many firms either have a mandatory breach disclosure law they have to follow or they abide by a voluntary policy where they commit to informing their users of breaches.

Websites sometimes change their privacy policies. Even those run by people with the best of intentions sometimes get hacked. And there's the weak link in the whole equation — people.

"If you post too much info on FB and don't have your privacy set properly — you can go on Facebook and find lots of people who have not put in any privacy restrictions on their information and that makes it really easy for people to target them."

Cupid's dart

On a personal level, people need to be aware of the threats closest to them— while the stereotypical "threat model" is a stranger jumping out of the bushes and attacking us, most victims of physical crimes know their attackers.

- In the computer world threats can be close too.
- Jealous partners and exes might want to snoop on your browsing or install spyware on your computer, says computer security researcher Leigh Honeywell.

The Honey Stick Project

Security researcher Scott Wright has found in his experiments that 80 per cent of the time, people will look through the content of a phone they find, beyond looking for contact information.
SEAN MCKIBBON/METRO

Spies like us?

If you lose your phone, are people reading your financial statements? Most people want to keep their private affairs private and don't want to be hacked, but how they feel about the privacy of others is a whole different thing.

Security researcher Scott Wright, who runs a study called the Honey Stick Project, has some bad news.

"People love to look at other people's employment and salary information," says Wright, who runs experiments in which he will drop unlocked USB keys and smartphones with fake files labeled things like "HR salaries," "concert tickets" or "passwords," in different cities in Canada and the U.S. and then monitors what people do with them.

"It's not all that encouraging," he says. "For USB drives, about 65 per cent of the time people will open them, plug them into their computer, double click on files, which could infect their computers."

For the phones, he says 80 per cent of the time people will go through the contents to see what's on them.

"And it's not just to find contact information," he says.

Do the phones come back? "About 50 per cent of the time they will get returned."

Q&A with the commish

Chantal Bernier.
Interim privacy commissioner talks about her biggest concerns and whether we need to redefine our ideas of privacy

TREVOR GREENWAY
& SEAN MCKIBBON
Metro in Ottawa

Interim Privacy Commissioner Chantal Bernier. THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Personal is still personal, even on Facebook

"'The public availability of personal information on the Internet' does not 'render personal information non-personal.'" Chantal Bernier, quoting a report from her office that looked into two government departments' collection of information from an activist's Facebook page

Metro posed a series of questions to Chantal Bernier, Interim Privacy Commissioner of Canada, by email. The following article has been edited for length and clarity.

Q: Canadians have many online privacy concerns. What do you see as threats they are facing?

A: Canadians face a growing number of threats … they may be tracked without their knowledge; they are vulnerable to hackers and fraudsters; and they may be surprised to find information they posted online used in ways they had not anticipated.

When Canadians were asked about the privacy risks that most concerned them, computer privacy and Internet security were second only to concerns related to security of financial information. We have seen a growing number of investigations under the Personal Information and Electronic Documents Act (PIPEDA) involve online issues.

We recently completed an investigation on how Google's online advertising service used sensitive information about individuals' online activities to target them with health-related advertisements. Not only was this contrary to Canadian privacy law … it was also contrary to Google's own privacy policy ... We were pleased Google agreed to implement our recommendations.

In our last annual report on the Privacy Act, we raised concerns with respect to two government departments collecting personal information posted by an activist on her personal Facebook page. We recommended that the departments not access this type of personal information from social media sites unless they could show there was a direct link to an operating program or activities.

Our Office recently prepared a Special Report to Parliament on reinforcing privacy protection and oversight for the Canadian intelligence community in an era of cyber-surveillance.

Canada does have a comparatively strong oversight system but our report includes a number of recommendations such as increased public reporting and a call for a re-examination of the oversight structure designed to ensure privacy.

Q: What is the volume of complaints your office fields about online privacy concerns?
A: In a typical year, our office investigates more than 1,400 complaints under the Privacy Act and PIPEDA.

Q: With the pervasiveness of Facebook and Twitter, do you think the definition of privacy needs to change?
A: Our expectations of privacy are different depending on circumstances. What you post on the Internet is not always private. We encourage people to only post things they would be comfortable with the whole world seeing.

Q: Do we need greater investment in creating a more secure IT infrastructure?
A: Our work has focused on ensuring organizations that are online use the tools and technologies available to properly protect security and privacy. Many privacy problems we encounter have more to do with business practices and improper use of technology to keep information secure, rather than fundamental infrastructure issues.

Q: Is the commission concerned that the government has been spying on its own people?
The recent revelations about surveillance matters have been troubling from a privacy standpoint. We hope our recent report to Parliament will contribute to a constructive, informed debate on privacy protection in the context of national security.

Little Afghan girl loses arm but not her love of painting

California dream. Seven-year-old gets a prosthetic arm fitted for free — and helping hand from L.A. artist

Afghan war victim Shah Bibi Tarakhail shows off her own painting with Los Angeles artist Davyd Whaley, right, at Galerie Michael in Beverly Hills, Calif., Wednesday. DAMIAN DOVARGANES/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

She had always loved to paint and draw, something it appeared the little girl from Afghanistan might never do again after she mistakenly picked up a grenade outside her war-torn home last year and it blew off her right arm.

But with the help of doctors, prosthetists and a prominent Los Angeles artist, seven-year-old Shah Bibi Tarakhail dispelled any notion that something as ugly as war can stifle a small child's determination to add beauty to the world.

At the Galerie Michael on Rodeo Drive in Beverly Hills on Wednesday, Shah Bibi grabbed a tube of colour with her new prosthetic hand and proceeded to put a series of brush strokes across a piece of art board artist Davyd Whaley had provided.

The artist's own work is on exhibition at Galerie Michael, where Shah Bibi was invited to join him after gallery owners learned of her love of art.

Less than a year ago, she was at home in Afghanistan when she went outside one morning to play with her brother. There had been a violent battle pitting Taliban fighters against U.S. military forces the night before, but that was nothing residents weren't used to.

"There was what looked like a rock that she picked up and threw on the ground and it exploded," said Ilaha Omar, a Children of War Foundation member who brought her to the United States, where Shriners Hospital treated her for free. The explosion had destroyed her right eye, taken off most of her right arm, put a few scars on her face and killed her brother.

She'll return to her family in Afghanistan next week.

700 climb 72-floor N.Y. tower for charity

It's a scramble to the top.

About 700 people took the long way up to the 72nd floor at 4 World Trade Center on Thursday evening — hiking up the stairs.

The event is called the Runyon Up, a fundraiser for the Damon Runyon Cancer Research Foundation.

Elite climbers lead off the event, the general field going up after that, with climbers heading off one at a time every few seconds.

Participants can either do a full climb, all 72 floors, or a partial climb to the 54th floor. There's also a virtual climb, for those who want to take the elevator to the 54th floor.

Tower climbs are held in high-profile buildings around the world, including the Empire State Building.

The event is sanctioned, unlike a recent spate of thrill-seekers making unauthorized visits to the site.

A tattoo on Leah Parsons' shoulder is partially covered by her shirt until she lifts the sleeve, revealing a portrait of her daughter Rehtaeh in black ink alongside small crows.

Parsons said she got the tattoo last May to honour her daughter, who had gotten one of a feather with crows flying out of it "like a rebirth" on her 16th birthday.

"It was kind of a way for her to take back her body," Parsons said.

It's been a year since Rehtaeh died on April 7 after attempting to take her own life, which her mother says was due to months of bullying after a photo of her alleged rape was spread around school.

A walk in her memory is planned for Saturday afternoon, which Parsons said has the double importance of bringing awareness to rape culture.

"It's a worldwide thing," Parsons said. "She resonates with other people because they know how easily it could be their child."

Parsons especially hopes teenagers will come and listen to the messages of respect, and not victimizing others.

"Don't stand around and do nothing. You've got to speak up."

Rehtaeh's story led to multiple reviews and new legislation around sharing intimate photos. Parsons said the important thing is she brought up issues "that needed to be talked about."

Halifax. Pizza theft has happy, cheesy ending

A Dartmouth, N.S., woman recovering at a Halifax hospital from surgery to treat Crohn's disease is awash in gratitude this week after some deep-dish acts of kindness.

Jessica Wilson, 24, has been on a mostly liquid diet over the last month. She awoke Tuesday eagerly looking forward to solid food in the form of a Hawaiian pizza she had stowed — marked with her name — in her floor's communal fridge.

But the pizza was gone, the empty box crumpled in the trash.

"When you're sick and you've been in hospital for a month, the smallest thing seems so big," said Wilson. "So for me, it was earth-shattering."

Jessica Wilson and her new pizza. CONTRIBUTED

Wilson took to Facebook to rant, and sympathetic friends took up her cause and by the end of Tuesday, two large pizzas had been delivered, anonymously, to her floor.

Fort Hood

Gunman may have argued with fellow soldiers

The soldier who killed three people at Fort Hood may have argued with another service member shortly before the attack at the Texas military base, and investigators believe his unstable mental health contributed to the rampage, authorities said Thursday.

The base's senior officer said there is a "strong possibility" that Spc. Ivan Lopez had a "verbal altercation" with another soldier or soldiers immediately before Wednesday's shooting, but there's no indication that he targeted specific soldiers.

A hospital official expressed optimism Thursday that all 16 people who were wounded in the shooting would survive.

Hunger strikers put in solitary as revenge: Activists

U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement has retaliated against about 20 immigrant hunger strikers and supporters at a Washington state detention facility by putting them in solitary confinement, activists said Thursday, and two legal groups sued to halt the practice.

The agency denied exacting any revenge, saying instead that those separated from the general population had been generating complaints by intimidating others to join the strike.

The strikers have sought an end to deportations as well better conditions at the centre.

Ford crack to fears of Project Brazen 2.

Wiretap shows locals worried they'd 'feel the heat' from T.O. mayor, who feels vindicated by investigation standstill

A woman living in a suspected crack house where she suggested the Rob Ford crack video was filmed complained the Toronto mayor's "people" were stopping by every day following media reports about the video, police allege.

Elena Basso is heard on a wiretapped conversation with an alleged gang member saying Ford has "got power" and "it doesn't matter who's right or wrong … we're going to feel the heat everywhere," police allege.

Police summaries of the wiretaps made as part of Project Traveller — a gang, drugs and weapons investigation — are among information ordered released to the public Thursday by an Ontario Superior Court judge.

Ford declared Thursday that he had been "cleared" after the provincial police force, which was tapped last month to oversee a Toronto police probe of the mayor's activities, said it was no longer involved.

That probe, dubbed Project Brazen 2, was sparked by media reports about a cellphone video on which Ford appears to smoke crack cocaine.

But at that time the Project Traveller investigation was already well underway, including wiretaps, which allegedly captured conversations about the video.

One of those conversations, police say in the documents, was between alleged gang member Liban Siyad — who would later be arrested in Project Traveller — and Basso, whose home police allege is a "frequent hangout for crack cocaine users."

According to the documents, Siyad tells Basso he had nothing to do with the video and both talk about "G" being responsible for it. Police believe "G" is Mohamed Siad, who was also ultimately arrested in Project Traveller.

If Siyad had the video, he would bring it to Basso "directly to give to Rob," police allege he said in a May 20 conversation.

"The f–ing goof did it at my house," police allege Basso said. "I got Rob's f–ing people and cops coming here every f–ing day."

The "whole area" is going to "go down" because of "G," and "G" screwed up her business, Siyad's business and everybody's business, police allege Basso said.

Siyad wanted Basso to tell Ford he didn't have the video and Basso assured him she knows that, police allege.

"To be fair, Rob Ford — I told you guys — is a big f–ing idiot," police allege Basso said.

The OPP said Thursday that "all the matters are currently before the courts" and there is no new information or evidence that needs to be followed up on. Ford took the news to mean he was cleared.

"I just knew all along, I didn't miss a day of work, I just kept coming in because I know I did nothing wrong," the mayor said at city hall.

Ousted Ukrainian president accused of using snipers, thugs to squash opposition

Ukraine's interim authorities accused the country's ousted president of ordering snipers to open fire on protesters and getting help from Russian security agents to battle his own people — but their report Thursday provided no evidence directly linking him to the bloodbath in Kyiv.

Acting Interior Minister Arsen Avakov also charged that his predecessor employed gangs of killers, kidnappers and thugs to terrorize and undermine the opposition during Ukraine's tumultuous winter of discontent.

The preliminary findings revealed by Kyiv's new leadership examined the months of anti-government protests that culminated in the deaths in February of over 100 people in Kyiv, mostly protesters. That violence forced a truce between the opposition and the government, but the arrangement quickly collapsed and President Viktor Yanukovych fled to Russia.

Jamaican music star gets life for 2011 murder

A Jamaican judge on Thursday sentenced dancehall reggae star Vybz Kartel and three other men to life in prison for the 2011 murder of an associate.

While police in riot gear manned barricaded streets outside the court in downtown Kingston, Judge Lennox Campbell ruled that the entertainer must serve 35 years behind bars before he can be eligible for parole. At that point, the tattooed Jamaican DJ who has dominated the brash reggae-rap hybrid of dancehall for a decade would be 73.

Last month, a jury convicted Kartel, 38, and three co-defendants of murdering Clive "Lizard" Williams, who was beaten to death in August 2011. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Evacuations, ruined homes after Chile earthquake

Repeated aftershocks. Power out in many areas, schools closed

Coastal residents of Chile's far north spent a second sleepless night outside their homes as major aftershocks continued Thursday following a magnitude-8.2 earthquake that damaged several thousand homes and caused six deaths.

No new major damage or casualties were reported, and a heavy police and military presence kept order.

The infrastructure in the area is nearly entirely intact, but with aftershocks continuing, life has been anything but normal. Power remains out in many areas, and hospitals were handling only emergencies. Schools were closed, and large supermarkets and gas stations co-ordinated their reopenings Thursday with police and military to avoid problems with long lines of customers.

After a magnitude-7.6 aftershock struck just before midnight Wednesday, Chile's Emergency Office and navy issued a tsunami alert, and for two hours ordered everyone living in low-lying areas along the country's entire 4,000-kilometre Pacific coastline to evacuate.

Among those moved inland was President Michelle Bachelet, who was in the city of Arica assessing damage in the north from Tuesday night's powerful quake.

"I was evacuated like all citizens. One can see that the people are prepared," she tweeted early Thursday.

Chile's evacuation order was lifted at around 2 a.m. Thursday. Some 900,000 people also were affected the night before when the entire coast was evacuated for several hours after Tuesday's bigger quake, although the tsunami proved small.

The repeated aftershocks have shaken buildings and sent people running into the streets in the port of Iquique, the largest city closest to the epicenter. About 45 minutes before the 7.6 quake, a magnitude-6.5 aftershock also rattled Iquique. The shaking loosened more landslides near Alto Hospicio, a poor area at the entrance to Iquique where about 2,500 homes had been damaged in Tuesday's larger quake.

The Ministry of Education suspended classes again in schools in the north for Thursday, while the region's top prosecutor, Manuel Guerra, said his office is taking action against speculators who sharply raised prices for bread, water, milk and diapers. "They will be detained and charged," Guerra tweeted, calling on the community to denounce "intolerable" abuses. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FireChat ignites off-the-grid convos

Humans made fire...
Now we've made a messaging app via wireless mesh networking so users can connect sans Internet

A new mobile messaging application called FireChat is empowering nearby smartphone users to stay in touch even when there's no cellular service or Internet connection.

In just two weeks since its release on the iPhone, FireChat already has provided a flicker of hope for people pining for more effective, secure and affordable ways to communicate. That's because the free messaging app harnesses a technology called wireless mesh networking, which might someday allow a myriad of devices to connect like links in a chain.

The technique might someday be used to tie together thousands of devices with built-in radios and make it possible to be online without having to pay for the access. It could also enable online communications in remote areas or disaster zones without Wi-Fi or cellular signals. Furthermore, the conversations in these so-called "off-the-grid" networks can't be easily hacked into by spies and mischief makers or shut down by governments trying to stifle free speech.

"We are trying to create networks built by the people for the people," said Micha Benoliel, CEO of Open Garden, maker of the FireChat app.

Open Garden, a San Francisco startup with just 10 employees, is taking another step toward its ambitious goal with Thursday's release of a FireChat app for Android phones.

FireChat could be an even hotter commodity on Android given the demographic differences between that platform's user base and the typical iPhone owner.

The app already has been installed on more than 1 million iOS devices.

Many smartphones running on Google Inc.'s free Android software are cheaper than Apple Inc.'s iPhone. That has made Android phones the top-selling mobile devices in less affluent countries, including in regions where Internet access is inadequate or expensive.

Google is among the big Internet companies intrigued with mesh networking's potential to bring more of the world online. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hitching a ride

FireChat's iPhone app piggybacks on an often overlooked feature called the Multipeer Connectivity Framework that Apple Inc. included in its latest mobile operating system, iOS 7, released last September.

LACK OF JUDGMENT? THAT'S %$#@

THE METRO LIST

Neil Morton
metronews.ca

1 Justin Trudeau. I'm all for politicians being transparent and real, so I don't think it's a big deal the Liberal leader dropped the f-bomb at a charity boxing event last weekend in Gatineau, Que. The PMO called his use of the f-word a "lack of judgment" but that's the pot calling the kettle black.

2 Circle of life. Imagine being on a plane, when all of the sudden a bunch of people break out in an amazing rendition of The Circle of Life and they turn out to be the Australian cast of The Lion King. That's what happened during a flight from Brisbane to Sydney, and the YouTube footage of their high-flying performance has three million views. What a scream, er, roar!

3 Final Four. It's March Madness fun this weekend as it all comes down to No 1. Florida versus No. 7 Connecticut, and No. 2 Wisconsin versus No. 8 Kentucky. I'm pumped for this but was really hoping Canada's Nik Stauskas would be playing there — the Michigan team he starred on lost a nail-biter to Kentucky in the Elite Eight.

4 Pranks. April Fools' wasn't just parents pranking their kids. Some of the best came from Canadian companies such as Fido, which replaced their iconic K9 with a feline in their branding, and WestJet claiming it's converting all its flight times to metric. That more companies have co-opted April Fools' is fine with me. All in good fun.

5 Photoshop Lorde. Huge props to Lorde, the 17-year-old pop star who drew attention to a photoshopped image of herself on Twitter, and then showed the "real" one with all her flaws. "I find this curious — two photos from today, one edited so my skin is perfect and one real. remember flaws are ok :-)" she said to her 1.4 million followers. Great message.

6 Miley & Avril. To lampoon a recent study ranking Avril as the most famous Canadian of all time, Miley Cyrus and Avril Lavigne showed they have comedic talent in a 14-second Instagram video where they argue over who is the most famous person in Canada. They end the video by play wrestling. The only thing that would have made it better is if the Biebs was refereeing.

7 Snapchat. Time.com posted an article on how Snapchat is growing up, as it transitions from tweens sending selfies to each other to college students trading admissions pics — and colleges actually directly recruiting students using the service. Facebook, Instagram and Twitter grew up. Now, it's Snapchat's turn. Time for me to join.

8 #YouKnowYoureCanadianWhen. What I love about Canadians is how funny and self-deprecating we are. So when #YouKnowYoureCanadianWhen trended this week, people ate it up like bacon with tweets like "You wanna wear shorts in 7 degree weather" and "you say sorry when the person bumped into you." Love this country.

9 (Samsung) selfie with Obama. A selfie of Boston Red Sox slugger David Ortiz with U.S. President Obama was all the rage this week. Turns out, Samsung — which was behind the Ellen Oscars selfie — was also behind this, as Ortiz has an endorsement deal with them. From now on, I'm just going to assume Samsung is behind every selfie that goes viral. So they win.

Epiphany led to niche photography

SOL NEELMAN
Photographer based in Portland, Ore.

How did you get into weird sports photography?
About ten years ago, a friend asked me, what do I love? "Travel, sport, photography and weird s--t," I replied. So I started researching about wild sporting events and sort of had an epiphany: I found fun things to photograph. So I quit my job at local newspaper The Oregonian and started travelling the world chronicling strange sports — 200 of them in nine years.

Synopsis

When we meet up with the recently defrosted super-hero Captain America (Chris Evans), he is catching up with the modern world. He soon finds himself tangling with the chrome-armed Winter Soldier (Sebastian Stan), a villain from Cap's long distant past and battle against a threat from deep inside S.H.I.E.L.D., his own spy network. The Captain must determine who can be trusted. Will it be S.H.I.E.L.D. director Nick Fury (Samuel L. Jackson), the flirty but deadly Natasha Romanoff (Scarlett Johansson) or World Security Council bigwig Alexander Pierce (Robert Redford)? The decisions he makes could save his life and the lives of 20 million civilians.

Captain America: The Winter Soldier.

Blockbuster's plot is ripe with twists and turns

Richard: Mark, movie by movie, Marvel is creating an interconnected universe. Like a giant jigsaw puzzle, the comic book company has pieced together something quite unprecedented: a series of films that aren't sequels to one another, but when combined form a loud, brash whole. Captain America was a latecomer to the party, and while the first film was a solid introduction, it didn't have the sparkle of, say, the first Iron Man movie. The character seemed a bit beige; a do-gooder with no rough edges. The Winter Soldier addresses those concerns, fleshing out the character and providing some very good action sequences. What did you think?

Mark: I'm not sure the word "think" applies much to the movie. But I did enjoy it, much more than the first installment. The plot seemed rooted in some reality, in a kind of paranoid thriller way, like Enemy of the State and Three Days of the Condor, and Robert Redford's presence makes the connection even more explicit. But I still don't feel I knew Captain America any better in this one. He's still a cipher to me — a sphinx with a very powerful garbage can lid.

RC: This time out I thought Evans got deeper into the character. Physically he's one big rippling muscle, but it's his personality and attitude that make him interesting. He's still a do-gooder, but one who questions his missions. "You're holding a gun to everyone on Earth and calling it protection," he says after learning of S.H.I.E.L.D.'s violent plan to bring peace to the world. It's an edgy message from a Greatest-Generation type to a world where drones have become common and Edward Snowden rides the line between patriot and traitor. The message permeates the plot, which is ripe with twists and turns and some genuinely thrilling moments.

MB: Dunno about the message, but there were two long memorable car chases, and that's enough for me! Loved the cast, but Scarlett Johansson was the cherry on the top of this sundae.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Were Gwyneth and Chris consciously open coupling?

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

I really do feel badly for Chris Martin and Gwyneth Paltrow. Say what you will about Gwyneth, no one ever accused her of not trying hard.

That's not to say that the Paltrow-Martin marriage was all picket fences and soccer games. Rumour has it that prior to their conscious uncoupling, Paltrow and Martin engaged in a fair amount of conscious coupling with other partners, according to E! Online.

Gwyneth's recent struggle with Vanity Fair was reportedly the result of her (ultimately successful) attempt to keep the magazine from printing rumours of her affair with businessman Jeffrey Soffer.

She's also been linked to Glee producer Brad Falchuk and attorney Kevin Yorn. Coldplay star Martin, meanwhile, has reportedly been spotted with Kate Hudson, Kate Bosworth, and Helena Christensen.

Olympian Tom Daley says he's gay, not bi

Tom Daley would like to clarify his earlier statement about his sexuality. When the British Olympic diver first divulged that he is dating a man — Oscar-winning screenwriter Dustin Lance Black, as it turns out — in a YouTube video in December, he was sure to mention, "Of course, I still fancy girls." But in an interview on Keith Lemon's Celebrity Juice, Daley revised his statement, saying, "I am a gay man now." And while he found the coming out experience terrifying, Daley is still glad he did it. "I came out on YouTube as I wanted to say what I wanted to say without anyone twisting it. I told my family before I told the world, " he says.

Germany's global appeal

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

I'm back from Germany — a winemaking country with a long history, both in its own vineyards and here in Canada.

If you're showing even a hint of grey hair, you probably remember Germany's liquid output as the sweet and simple stuff your parents drank at bridge club parties.

But today's German wines have a secret weapon. Predominately white, their balance of sugar and acidity make them extremely food-friendly, especially when you're looking for a match with takeout. Sushi, Chinese, Mexican, Thai, anything spicy, and they can fill your glass.

I spent some time in the Mosel region: a beautiful part of the wine world populated by small fairy-tale towns where steeply planted vines grow on the slopes that rise from the banks of the meandering Moselle river.

In the Mosel, Riesling is king, with wines like Dr. Loosen's 2012 'Dr. L' Riesling ($13.95 - $18.99) offering soft, green apple/fruit expression and a palate-cleansing personality that pairs perfectly with the local cuisine. ‘I’m not sure if I’ll be back next season’

Mike Gillis. Canucks GM opens up about future with the club, style of play under head coach Tortorella

cam.tucker@metronews.ca

With the end of a season rife with controversy and ultimate disappointment in sight, Vancouver Canucks general manager Mike Gillis spoke candidly on Thursday, offering uncertainty about his future with the National Hockey League team.

He also spoke out about the style of play that has been put in place under head coach John Tortorella, hired last June.

The Canucks are still mathematically alive in the playoff race, sitting 10th in the Western Conference and six points out of a playoff spot with five games remaining.

There has been a public uproar for Tortorella to lose his job. Gillis has been under heavy criticism as well. On Tuesday, a group of protesters outside Rogers Arena held signs saying “Fire Gillis.”

“We have passionate fans and they have every right to voice their displeasure,” Gillis told Team 1040 radio Thursday morning.

Three years ago, when they got to within one win of the Stanley Cup, the Canucks were a highly skilled, highly motivated puck-possession team that not only had the league’s best power play, but often put teams away in the third period.

With the Canucks having a mathematical long shot to make the playoffs, general manager Mike Gillis is feeling the heat from the team’s passionate fans. GETTY IMAGES FILE

Quoted

“If people don’t want to get onside with how I view this team and how it’s supposed to play, then they won’t be here.” Canucks general manager Mike Gillis

This year, the Canucks are 28th in the league, scoring at a clip of 2.34 goals per game. The power play is ranked 27th in the league. If the season were to end today, the Canucks’ top players, Daniel and Henrik Sedin — who have both spent time injured — would finish with their lowest offensive production since before the 2004-05 lockout.

“The running of this team is my responsibility and I really feel over the last couple of seasons we’ve ... got away from our core principals of how I want this team to play,” said Gillis.

Gillis was then asked about the future of Tortorella.

“I’m not sure if I’ll be back next season,” replied Gillis, who signed a contract extension with the Canucks back in 2012.

“I think everyone is open for evaluation.

“Having said that, our problems are far-reaching and they will be addressed. If people don’t want to get onside with how I view this team and how it’s supposed to play, then they won’t be here.”

Whitecaps look to keep ‘rock-solid’ home form going

After going undefeated through the first month of the season, the Vancouver Whitecaps (2-0-2) host the Colorado Rapids at BC Place Stadium on Saturday, looking to pick up in April where they left off in March.

The Whitecaps are coming off a victory over the Houston Dynamo on the home pitch, which is where both of their wins early on in this Major League Soccer season have come.

“We’ve said it all along, if we’re going to be successful it’s about having a rock-solid home form,” striker Kenny Miller, who has scored all three of his goals this season at BC Place, told reporters earlier in the week.

“When you’re winning games and you’re playing well, like we did on Saturday (against the Houston Dynamo) it breeds confidence. So going into this weekend, we’ll be full of ... confidence hoping to do much pretty the same again, and better, because we’re always looking to improve.”

The Rapids, who officially eliminated the Whitecaps from playoff contention late last season, come into this game with a 1-1-1 record. CAM TUCKER/METRO

Leafs top big bad hurdle in playoff chase

James van Riemsdyk reacts to Tyler Bozak’s goal against Bruins goalie Chad Johnson and forward Jordan Caron on Thursday night in Toronto. THE CANADIAN PRESS

All coach Randy Carlyle wanted his Toronto Maple Leafs to do was breathe.

“That’s been our catchphrase now, because you can’t do anything if you don’t breathe,” he said.

Breathe despite seeing an eight-game losing streak all but ruin their playoff chances. Breathe despite blowing a two-goal, third-period lead to the Boston Bruins on Thursday night at Air Canada Centre. The Leafs did that, then got a chance to exhale with a 4-3 overtime victory that, if nothing else, keeps their hopes alive for another couple of days.

Thursday night

Maple Leafs	Bruins

“We’re alive, but there’s a lot of things that have to go our way,” Carlyle said. “Make sure that we don’t get too far ahead of ourselves. We’ve only won two games here.”

Nazem Kadri’s goal 2:51 into overtime was just one of several pieces that must fall into place for the Leafs to rebound and make the playoffs as a wild card in the Eastern Conference. They likely need to also win all four of their remaining games, as they got no help Thursday night from the Columbus Blue Jackets, who beat the Philadelphia Flyers to remain one point ahead (85 to 84). Seven years later, the Jays just can't win in Tampa

Split series. After two wins and two losses in Florida, Jays will host Yankees till Sunday

Chris Archer THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chris Archer threw six solid innings, Evan Longoria hit a three-run homer and the Tampa Bay Rays split a four-game series with Toronto by beating the Blue Jays 7-2 on Thursday night.

Archer (1-0) allowed two runs, four hits, two walks and had seven strikeouts. Archer and the Rays agreed to a $25.5 million, six-year deal Wednesday. The contract includes club options for 2020 and 2021 that could raise the value to $43.75 million.

Longoria tied Carlos Pena for first on the Rays' career home run list with 163 on his seventh-inning shot off Esmil Rogers that put Tampa Bay ahead 7-2.

Brandon Morrow (0-1) gave up four runs and seven hits over five innings in his first start since May 28.

The right-hander missed the final four months last season due to an entrapped radial nerve in his right forearm.

The Blue Jays extended their winless road series streak at Tampa Bay to 21. Since taking a series in April 2007, Toronto has lost 19 and split two road series against the Rays.

"Against those four starters they threw at us, to get two wins, you've got to feel good, especially after getting knocked around a little bit that first game," Toronto manager John Gibbons said. "So we'll go home feeling good."

Ryan Hanigan had an RBI single in the second, and Desmond Jennings hit a run-scoring double during a three-run third as the Rays took a 4-0 lead.

Toronto got to 4-2 in the fourth on Dioner Navarro's sacrifice fly and an RBI infield single from Brett Lawrie.

Tampa Bay right fielder and 2013 AL Rookie of the Year Wil Myers was scratched from the lineup due to flu-like symptoms. Infielder-outfielder Sean Rodriguez was placed on the paternity leave list and infielder Vince Belnome was recalled from Triple-A Durham.

Rays outfielder David DeJesus returned after missing two games with a bruised foot and went 2 for 5. First listed to start in left field, he was moved to designated hitter.

Gibbons wanted to challenge an out call on Lawrie's one-out grounder in the ninth, but was denied the opportunity because he was too late in telling the umpires of his decision.

"Once the pitcher steps on the rubber and the hitter steps in the box, they nullify it," Gibbons said. "It turned out he was out, but at the time it was questionable."

The Blue Jays will start RHP Dustin McGowan in Friday night's home opener against the New York Yankees. Japanese star Masahiro Tanaka will make his major league debut for the Yankees.

Jets. Kane sued over alleged assault

Winnipeg Jets' forward Evander Kane is being sued in British Columbia over an alleged assault in Vancouver last summer.

A statement of claim filed on behalf of Vancouver resident Lev Makievsky says he was returning home from work Aug. 10, 2013, in the downtown area when he was assaulted by Kane, who is from Vancouver.

It gives no details of the alleged incident but lists a long series of injuries Makievsky says he incurred, including a concussion, and claims he has "permanent physical disability."

"Nothing surprises me," Kane said after practice Thursday in Winnipeg.

"Playing in the Canadian market, every little thing becomes a big thing," he added.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You seem to be feeling a bit vulnerable but there really is no need. What happens over the next few days will lift your spirits and also remind you that, even when things do go a little bit wrong, it's not the end of the world.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You may be tempted to hit back at someone who has been spreading gossip about you, but is it worth it? If you say something rude they will see they have managed to get under your skin.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You have taken on a lot of new responsibilities but is that wise? You may think you can handle the extra work with ease but the planets warn it will, sooner or later, get too much. It should be about quality work, not quantity.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
You must make an effort to finish what you have started, because if you fall behind any further it may be impossible for you to catch up. Close your eyes and ears to distractions and focus on the one thing you really must get done.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
If there is something important that needs to be done over the next two days, get on with it and ignore those who say you're not up to the task. They have no idea what you are capable of. They will soon find out though!

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
A relationship that has caused you a few sleepless nights will start to improve over the weekend but don't think that means you no longer have to work at it. According to the planets, this may be the last chance you'll get.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
There is really no need to cut back on essentials or make major sacrifices, no matter what some people might say. It may seem as if there is no way out of your financial dilemma but there is always a way, so stay calm and think logically.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
You are doing too many things for too many people and need to slow down a bit. If you carry on trying to do it all you are sure to burn yourself out, physically and emotionally, so stop catering to their every whim and fancy.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Don't let people play on your feelings and get you to do things you might not choose to do if you were thinking logically. Get tough and let them know you are no longer prepared to play this game.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Why is it that some people seem to enjoy making life so complicated? Whatever the reason you don't have to follow their example, so keep things simple today and don't go searching for complicated answers to what are such straightforward questions.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
A light-hearted attitude will take you a long way today. The planets suggest if you take nothing too seriously then nothing too serious will go wrong. In the greater scheme of things, it all comes right in the end.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You will find it easy to see the good in other people today — and they in turn will realize what a special friend they have in you. You can't love the whole world, of course, but the world has a special place in its heart for you .
